WELCOME

For hundreds of years the Czech lands have been an important source of folk and art music and theatre, creating part of our European cultural heritage. Jewish composers from our lands have also contributed to this legacy, whether their names are celebrated, such as Gustav Mahler and Erwín Schulhoff, or have fallen into obscurity. One particular group of composers and musicians, a group including men like Hans Krása and Gideon Klein, perished as victims of the Holocaust before they could fully develop their exceptional talents. The creative output of this generation, along with works by musical and theatrical artists from other lands who were imprisoned in Nazi concentration camps or who had to flee from Nazism, has often remained preserved only in memories, occasional recordings and incomplete archives. Thanks to the project Performing the Jewish Archive these works will now step 'out of the shadows' and again occupy their rightful place in contemporary history. They bear witness to the failure of the monstrous plans to wipe from history a whole nation and its culture.

A MEMORIAL AND A CELEBRATION!

I am honoured to introduce the international festival OUT OF THE SHADOWS: Rediscovering Jewish Music and Theatre, taking place in Prague, Pilsen and Terezín from 18th to 25th September 2016.

OUT OF THE SHADOWS falls under the auspices of the UK Arts and Humanities Research Council project titled Performing the Jewish Archive, a collaboration between the Universities of Leeds and York (UK), Wisconsin-Madison (USA), and Sydney Conservatorium (Australia), alongside some 25 partner organisations around the world.

The project has a number of aims:

- Seeking out and recovering artefacts from the vast but hidden accumulation of Jewish music and theatre that was forgotten or thought lost because of the Holocaust, whether directly or indirectly.
- Re-examining the very nature of the archive as a concept, especially the problems of dealing with an archive so fragmented and dispersed as the Jewish Archive.
- Devising innovative ways of presenting this re-discovered music and theatre to the public, and testing the public's reaction to it.
- Preserving these works and their co-texts in a new online archive available as a research tool to the public.

Our sites of enquiry are many and varied, from Europe to America, Australia to South Africa. By exploring both established archives (national archives: university collections: museums, etc) and unconventional archives (attics; basements; recordings; memories; testimonies, etc), we hope to broaden the definition of what is accepted as an archive. At the same time we are finding new and informative connections between archival artefacts, enabling us to question the received hierarchies and priorities that have hitherto drawn the attention of researchers and performers alike.

At the heart of the project are five festivals, each called OUT OF THE SHADOWS. Spanning the globe, these have so far taken place in Madison, US (May 2016) and Leeds/York, UK (April & June 2016). They continue here in Prague, Pilsen and Terezín (September 2016), before moving to Sydney, Australia (August 2017), and Cape Town, South Africa (September 2017).

In the Czech Republic, we feature Jewish cabaret originally from the Terezín ghetto, a delightful setting of the Czech children's story The Fireflies, chamber music, songs from the Terezín ghetto, vocal music by émigré composers, a powerful choral tableau of Jewish suffering and redemption from the Helsinki Jewish archives performed to a backdrop of paintings by Ivan Bukovský, and much more besides. Performances are enhanced and contextualised by a brand new exhibition, created in collaboration with the South African Holocaust and Genocide Foundation.

We are proud to welcome as performers the distinguished actress Táňa Fischerová, the Flying Rabbi Klezmer Ensemble, Piccolo Coro Chamber Choir, the Sojka and Fama Quartets, and the acclaimed Clothworkers Consort Chamber Choir from the UK. Alongside these we also feature the next generation of performers from the Prague and Pilsen Conservatories, and students from Central Michigan University, USA.

OUT OF THE SHADOWS promises to be a memorable, poignant and even sometimes challenging week of events, celebrating the lives and achievements of Jewish artists in times of both adversity and freedom. We look forward to welcoming you throughout the festival.

HERITAGE AND HOPE: FROM THE CANTORS OF PRAGUE TO THE CHILDREN OF TEREZÍN

The Holocaust in the Czech lands destroyed lives and traditions: the lives of children interned in the Terezín ghetto and the tradition of sacred music in Prague's synagogues. In this concert, the Clothworkers Consort of Leeds, UK, performs recently rediscovered music from Prague's synagogues that was lost during the Holocaust, and Táňa Fischerová with Daniel Dobiáš bring to life poems written by the children confined at Terezín in new music arrangements.

MAKE ONCE MORE MY HEART THY HOME: A COMPOSER IN EXILE

Hans Gál (1890–1987) was one of a generation of Austrian Jewish composers forced to flee when the Nazis invaded the country. This programme celebrates Gál's love of choral music, placing his own settings of poems by Shakespeare, Blake, Johnson, Shelley, and Queen Elizabeth I amidst the music he most admired, including Heinrich Schütz, Johannes Brahms, Robert Schumann and Joseph Haydn.

Clothworkers Consort of Leeds Bryan White – conductor

The concert will be recorded by Czech Radio VItava. The date of its broadcasting TBA; please follow www.zestinu.cz.

JEWISH CABARET FROM TEREZÍN TO HELSINKI

Scenes, songs and poems from two cabarets written in Terezín and from the work of Jac Weinstein of Helsinki.

Though the Nazis forced Jewish artists out of public life, Jewish culture continued to thrive – sometimes in the most unexpected places. This cabaret presents works from two such places: one in the heart of Nazi-occupied territory – the WWII Jewish ghetto at Terezín; the other in a precarious position just outside it – the Jewish community of Helsinki.

GIDEON KLEIN – PORTRAIT OF A COMPOSER

Using actors, live music and visuals, this programme presents an intimate, moving, and sometimes humorous portrait of the Czech-born composer and pianist, tragically murdered at the age of 25 in Auschwitz. With music by Gideon Klein himself, as well as his beloved Mozart, Paul Hindemith and Leoš Janáček, it brings to life recently-discovered first-hand accounts of Gideon's pre-war musical activities in Prague, as well as testimony from himself and others detailing the musical activities in Terezín.

In Czech with English-language script provided upon request.

MOTHER RACHEL AND HER CHILDREN

Mother Rachel and Her Children is a long-lost oratorio from Finland, written originally in Yiddish in 1948 by Helsinki-born Jac Weinstein (1883–1976). The piece takes the viewer on a journey through scenes from the two thousand years of suffering of the Jewish people, yet ends in a messianic panorama of a glorious future. Followed by a post-performance question and answer session with the performers and Dr. Simo Muir, who discovered the work.

In Czech with English-language script provided upon request.

TEREZÍN'S 'THE FIREFLIES'

The Fireflies (Broučci), a children's musical created and performed in the Terezín Ghetto, was based on the 19th century children's book by Jan Karafiát. Terezín's 'The Fireflies', a reconstruction of the Terezín performance by Dr. Lauren B. McConnell and her colleagues from Central Michigan University, features Czech folk songs and recounts the comic misadventures of a firefly boy as he comes of age.

In English with Czech synopsis provided.

Followed by a post-performance discussion with Terezín survivors Jana Urbanová and Michaela Vidláková, and Lauren B. McConnell.

Students of the Central Michigan University
Lauren B. McConnell – script adaptation and song selection
José-Luis Maúrtua – musical adaptation and original music

THE WOODEN BOX: A FAIRY TALE FROM TEREZÍN (THEATRICAL PERFORMANCE)

Performed in Czech by the Obliging Suchdolians.

No reservations required; voluntary donations accepted.

When Adriana Skálová's parents died, she found among their possessions a small wooden box containing her grandmother Lederer's diaries, a collection of fairy tale plays for children labeled 'Terezin 1943', and extensive correspondence to and from the Terezin ghetto. The play 'The Wooden Box' weaves together the story of brave Jack and his attempts to slay the dragon, the story of the family Lederer as they fought to maintain ties in spite of war and deportation, and her own personal search for the meaning of her family's complex and tragic history.

FRIDAY, 23TH SEPTEMBER, 10 AM-4 PM

NATIONAL AWARDS: YOM HA SHOAH FOURTH ANNUAL CONTEST FOR SCHOOLS

A pedagogical event for teachers and pupils to honour the national winners of the Terezín Initiative Institute's annual Yom HaShoah competition. Pupils will present the winning works of visual art, prose, short films and musical compositions, and the Nature School in Prague will present a play written by 14-year-old Hanuš Hachenburg in the Terezín Ghetto, Looking for a Spectre. This event will be held in Czech.

EXHIBITION

A TRAVELLING EXHIBITION created in collaboration with Performing the Jewish Archive and the South African Holocaust and Genocide Foundation, will be displayed at all concerts, performances and events of the Out of the Shadows festival.

PROJECT RESEARCH TEAM

Dr Steve Muir is a Senior Lecturer in Music at the University of Leeds, and Principal Investigator for the Performing the Jewish Archive project. He has worked as a professional percussionist, conductor, and tenor soloist throughout the UK, and is Assistant Director of the Clothworkers Consort of Leeds. His research focuses on Jewish liturgical music, particularly in South Africa and Russia.

Dr Nick Barraclough is a co-investigator on the Performing the Jewish Archive project and a Senior Lecturer in Psychology at the University of York. He investigates how audience members respond to different performances. This research includes conducting experiments using machine learning algorithms to process facial expression information, and administering questionnaires and psychological tests. Nick graduated from the University of Edinburgh with a BSc in Neuroscience and later received his PhD from the University of Nottingham.

Dr Helen Finch is Director of Student Education for the School of Languages, Cultures and Societies at the University of Leeds and a co-investigator on the Performing the Jewish Archive project. She is currently working on a book project entitled Holocaust Literature in German: Canon, Witness, Remediation and is also a co-investigator on a series of projects linking researchers in the UK and South Africa working on trauma, reconciliation and reparation in the aftermath of German Nazism and Afrikaner nationalism.

Dr Teryl Dobbs is an associate professor and Chair, Music Education, in the School of Music and Department of Curriculum and Instruction at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. She is an affiliate of the Mosse- Weinstein Center for Jewish Studies, the Arts Institute, and the Disability Studies Initiative. She presents her research nationally and internationally and publishes in journals that include the Philosophy of Music Education Review and The Bulletin of the Council for Research in Music Education.

Dr David Fligg is Project Consultant for Performing the Jewish Archive. His main research focus is the life and music of Gideon Klein, whose critical biography he is currently writing. Much of his work is centred on archival research at the Jewish Museum, Prague. David is also a Tutor in Academic Studies at Manchester's Royal Northern College of Music, and Visiting Professor at Chester University's Faculty of Arts and Media. He is the author of A Concise Guide to Orchestral Music (Mel Bay).

Dr Simo Muir is a postdoctoral research fellow funded by Performing the Jewish Archive, University of Leeds, United Kingdom. Whereas Dr Muir investigated Yiddish language and culture in Helsinki, Finland, for his dissertation, his current research focuses on post-war memory politics and early Holocaust remembrance in Finland and how that manifests itself in the performing arts. For the Performing the Jewish Archive grant, Dr Muir is investigating recently discovered Yiddish theatre and choral pieces from Helsinki that deal with anti-Semitism and the Shoah, which date from the 1930s and the immediate post-war era.

Dr Lisa Peschel is a lecturer in the Department of Theatre, Film and Television at the University of York, United Kingdom. Her articles on theatrical performance in the Terezín/Theresienstadt ghetto have appeared in forums such as Theatre Survey, Theatre Topics, Holocaust and Genocide Studies, and in Czech, German and Israeli journals. She received a Fulbright grant (2004-05) and fellowships at both the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum (2009) and the Center for Jewish Studies at Harvard University (2010-11). Dr Peschel recently published an edited volume of newly discovered works, Performing Captivity, Performing Escape: Cabarets and Plays from the Terezín/Theresienstadt Ghetto.

Dr Joseph Toltz is Research Fellow at the Sydney Conservatorium of Music, University of Sydney, His area of expertise is the nexus between music and memory in Jewish Holocaust survivors. A former fellow at the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum (2010-11), he is completing research on the 1946 field recordings of David Boder, and is co-authoring a book on the first published collection of Holocaust songs. For Performing the Jewish Archive he is working with the Terezín survivor oral history archive of Professor David Bloch, music from the Austrian refugee composer Wilhelm Grosz, and is transforming the musical memories and biography of a child survivor of the Lodz ghetto to the stage, Joseph is a composer, arranger, conductor and professional singer. In August 2014 he staged the first Sydney performances of the children's opera Brundibár.
